AMERICAN'S CREED.

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people, whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established on those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

LEAGUE WORKS.

Sweden has accepted the verdict of the League of Nations arbitrators in the Aland Islands case. The award was in favor of Finland's claims and against Sweden's and it was feared that the latter would refuse to accept on the ground that the award was unjust.

Such refusal would have made a farce of the whole League of Nations arbitration program and would have come pretty close to destroying whatever confidence there is in the league as an agency for peace and justice among the nations.

The award was a bitter pill for the Swedes, but in the interest of international good will and as an evidence of their faith in the league, they have swallowed it.

The precedent thus established is of the very greatest importance as showing the possibilities involved in the league theory that even the gravest controversies between nations must not necessarily lead to war.

Turkey has passed a law requiring all men above 25 years to marry immediately. The penalty for non-compliance is a quarter of the offender's income. France, at its athletic carnival, awarded prizes which can be turned into cash partially when the winner marries, and partially at the birth of his first three children. It appears that matrimonial ideas in France are still somewhat in advance of those in Turkey.
